The Carmel Pine Cone

VOL. 55. No. 47 PRICE 15¢ PUBLISHED WEEKLY AT CARMEL-BY-THE-SEA, CALIFORNIA 44 pages NOVEMBER 26, 1969

EARLY ARTIST – The archives of the Pine Cone contain a thousand and one dusty, fascinating items, including this linoleum cut by an unknown artist. We have searched some of the back issues but have not found out when it had been previously used, if ever. At any rate, we think it is an amusing expression of the Thanksgiving spirit.

City planners permit '39 Craftsmen'

Much of last week's Carmel Planning Commission meeting was devoted to a consideration of what is called the City's 'inter-accessibility' requirements in single family dwellings located in residential areas.

These requirements simply mean that all the rooms in a single-family dwelling should have room-and-hall arrangements which give full family access to all the rooms in the house. The purpose of the inter-accessibility rule is to remove any temptation for owners to rent out portions of their dwellings which might otherwise have separate outside entrances.

The questioning of the inter-accessibility rule came before the Commission because an attorney, Don Hubbard, had proposed an amendment which would have the effect of allowing residential property owners, under specified conditions, to vary the interpretation of the law if they could establish that they did not plan to rent out premises.

The Hubbard proposal had been studied by a committee composed of Commissioners Fred Keeble and Olof Dahlstrand – both architects – and that committee had recommended against making any change in the City's inter-accessibility rules.

After hearing an oral presentation made by Hubbard to advance his amendment proposal, the Commission voted to accept its own committee's recommendation and thus to deny Hubbard's request. Though sympathizing with Hubbard, Dahlstrand said he felt any change in current requirements might, in the future, lead some one in the residential district to try to "sneak in a rental unit."

The Commission also heard a brief oral presentation made by Howard ("Bud") Allen, La Playa hotel owner, who asked that a number of craftsmen who had long wanted to show their wards at the La Playa Hotel during the first week-end in December, be permitted to do so. Allen made the point that he was asking only for permission to allow this one event, and not to present

James P. Cost installed as 1970 CBA president

The informal talk made at last Thursday night's Beach Club meeting of the Carmel Business Association by James Peter Cost would have pleased dedicated Carmelites of years past.

Cost had just been installed as the new president of the Association by outgoing president Mary Barter, and he lost no time in making it clear that he would not apply any kind of conventional push-for-progress during his coming term of office.

Cost said, in fact, that there may "already have been too much change," and that certainly there shouldn't be any more. He pointed out that he and his family had traveled many thousands of miles to look for the ideal place in which to live and to work, and that they had found it here in the Carmel area. And, having found it, he said he wanted to try to help to keep it just as he first saw it, nearly ten years ago.

In this connection he referred his listeners to a series of articles which have appeared in the Pine Cone in the past year or so, written by Gunnar Norberg, which have told about the kind of Carmel he has in mind.

Though much of the evening was devoted to the annual winter dinner-dance which the Business Association has been holding before the Holidays for some years, brief talks of serious intent were given both by incoming president

Bicentennial news

Activities kickoff

On Saturday, Dec. 6, 1969, the rush of cross country runners and the thunder of hundreds of horse hooves will ring in the beginning of Monterey County's Bicentennial year!

Starting at 9 a.m. a group of nearly 150 riders will assemble south of Salinas for a trail ride over Fort Ord onto the beach in Monterey.

This impressive expediction will be lead by the Hartnell Horsemen's Association.

At the beach they'll be met by the mayors of the Monterey Peninsula cities, and Mayor G. Gadsby has been invited as well. A proclamation will be read at the site of a cross raised by the Old Monterey Bicentennial in commemoration of a cross raised there 200 years ago by Captain Portola and Father Crespi. After the brief ceremonies the group will have a meal catered by Hartnell Students. The ride is open to everyone. Call the Salinas Bicentennial Office at 424-7611.

While the riders and their mounts are assembling in Salinas, there'll be activity in Monterey as well! The Salinas branch of the Old Monterey Bicentennial is sponsoring a 20-mile foot race – The Salinas Bicentennial Cross Country Road Run!

Under the direction of former director of athletics at HArtnell, Ed Adams, this event will feature runners from high schools, junior colleges, universities and private clubs.

They will leave Monterey from the Monterey County Fairgrounds at 9 a.m. and run to Hartnell College.

Awards will be presented by Thomas J. King, chairman for all Salinas Bicentennial activities.

First prize in each of the three participating classes will be the $50 silver medallion of the Old Monterey Bicentennial – prizes will be awarded through fourth place. Entries are available at the Salinas Chamber of Commerce; entries close Nov. 30. 424-7611.

Cost and by the outgoing president, Mrs. Barter, who expressed her appreciation to the members of the executive board, of committeees, and of the Association generally, for their co-operation during her term of office.

Holdover members of that board are: Stan Ewig, Gordon Robertson, Ashton Stanley, Leo Tanous, and Richard Wilsdon. The new board members succeed the following, whose terms have expired: Howard ("Bud") Allen, Russ Harris, Carolyn Vogel and Mrs. Baxter.

A proposal to change the organization's by-laws, and to increase annual dues from $20.00 to $36.00, was announced by Mrs. Barter, who said action on that proposal will be taken at the coming spring meeting of the Association. Some long-time members wondered whether dues should be increased if there is no intention to engage in any of the usual kinds of promotional activity, but there was no general discussion of the question at last week's essentially social meeting.

Planning meeting

such events on any regular basis. The single-event proposal won unanimous Commission approval.

The Commission also heard from two applicants who wished to subdivide their residential properties.

Cartoonist Gus Arriola, wanted to create a separate lot out of a portion of his home property at Camino Real & 13th. Since the new lot would satisfy the City's 4,000-square-foot minimum lot requirement, and since the new lot would be of a regular shape, the Commission gave its approval.

Another applicant, retired businessman Richard P. Richardson, faced the Commission with a somewhat different proposal, since the new lot he wanted to create would be irregularly shaped.

The City requirement for such lots is higher than for regularly shaped ones – 6,– square feet minimum instead of 4,000. Richardson's proposed new lot would be irregular in shape because of the juxstaposition of the two public streets on which it would face – Mountain View & Snata Fe. Chairman Charles McEwen referred the proposal to two of the Commission's committees who will report to the full Commission on the matter at its next meeting – Dec. 17. (As in November, because of the holiday periods, the Commission will hold only one December meeting instead of the usual two.)

The outdoor display of merchandise in the City's business district – a subject which has been before the Commission and the City Council intermittently through the years – came before the Commission once more last week.

An ordinance on the subject, which the Commission had prpared was returned to it by the City Council which suggested further study.

Chairman McEwen assigned the matter to a committee composed of Commissioners Edward Neroda, Dorothy von Meier, and Dorothea Roberts.

In other action, the Commission approved sign requests for Rosemary Miner, Kenneth Wood, Ricahrd Danskin, George Bleich, and Tyrone Cabeen. All the new signs, – except Wood's – were for use by art galleries. Wood is a realtor.

A request from the Christian Science church for new exterior lighting, was referred back to a Commission committee for further study.

Monterey chosen as site for pilot program

The Monterey Bay Teachers Association was today given special recognition by the National Education Association and the California Teachers Association. They have chosen the Monterey Peninsula School District as one of five pilot "laboratories" in the nation for a one year program to improve instructional techniques and professional development of teaching personnel.

Through the project, the National Education Association and the California Teachers Association will work with the teachers and other educational and community agencies in such areas as improving in-service education, fuller teacher involvement in curriculum innovation and new ways of using school staff time and talents to improve education.

As new ways of involving the Association in school improvement are discovered, found successful and judged to hold promise for other school systems, they will be evaluated and plans made for their dissemination in California and throughout the country.

Gerard Souzay in brilliant Sunset vocal performance

By Rachel Morton

The Carmel Music Society got back into stride with a magnificent concert at Sunset Auditorium Thursday night. Two great artists, Gerard Souzay, baritone and Dalton Baldwin at the piano held a near-capacity audience spellbound during a formidable program of great classical song literature.

After so much instrumental programming of late, how good it was to hear a vocal recital. Why are they so rarely given?

Gerard Souzay is a Frenchman by birth, but his rare linguistic talents (he speaks six languages), plus his many successful appearances in many lands, has made him an international favorite. A handsome, commanding figure, he ingratiated himself to his audience at first entrance.

But it was the noble quality of his rich baritone voice that enlisted our rapt attention. And when he poured through his singing the intimate meaning of the words one was caught up into the spell of the music. Souzay is an actor, a comedian and a poet. He communicated the soul of the music to the heart of the listener – a raconteur par excellence.

And at the piano was an equally great artist, Dalton Baldwin. I have heard accompanists for many celebrated singers, but never have I heard one comparable to Baldwin. Not only did he become one with the singer, he also became one with the music.

Technique, of which he was a master, became incidental as he hued out massive support and brilliant tonal display. He could be quiet, too, and whispered when Souzay whispered. If ever two artists were attuned to one another, these two were they.

"Five Popular Greek Melodies," by Maurice Ravel opened the program. These were light-hearted and gay; typically French and delightfully sung. Of the five Schubert songs namely: "Bei Dir," "Meeres Stille," "Der Schiffer," "An Die Laute" and "Der Doppelganger," the last was the most stirring. With death in the music of the opening measures of the piano, the macabre, hollow tone of the singer vividly portrayed the weird phantom of "Der Doppelganger," so vividly, in fact, that one shuddered as he sang, "Und ringt die hande."

"Trois Nuits d'Ete," by Hector Berlioz were deeply moving songs. Lacey and light was the "Villanelle;" the summer blazed in intensity and shimmered with the sacness of the great music of "Le Specire de la Rose," while tears dimmed one's eyes with Souzay's beautiful singing of "L'Absence."

Quite a devil did Souzay become as he sang Mephisto's Serenade from "The Damnation of Faust."

Almost too ethereal to be substance was the exquisite music of the first three Faure songs: "Clair de Lune," "Madrigal," "Le Parfum Imperissable." In the fourth song of Faure, "Tourjours," the sombre chords set the mood – the singer's voice rose and fell in tremendous declamation. A great song sung by a great artist.

A morbid cycle of war scenes by Ned Rorem was dedicated to the men who died in Vietnam June 20-30, 1969 and depicted the hell of war, especially in the piano part. It was a tour de force for the pianist.

It was good to get back to the glorious music of Robert Schumann. Souzay is a master or Lieder singing and a master of vocal production. There was golden moonlight and great refinement in the singing of "Mondnacht." Deep pathos was evoked in "Der Wanderlied;" the heartbreak of "Stille Thranen," was poignantly felt and the rollicking "Widmung" was a joy to hear.

The enthralled and enthusiastic audience demanded several recalls and two encores were given which were' "Serenade" from "Don Giovanni," by Tschaikowsky, sung in Russian; and a Brazilian folk song.

Long Thanksgiving weekend featured at Pebble Beach

A post Thanksgiving night at the races and a Saturday morning polo game are among the highlights of a long holiday weekend at Pebble Beach which includes dominoes, a turkey shoot, the Tartan Ball and movies every night.

The four-day holiday for Pebble residents and guests of Del Monte Lodge gets off to a winging start on Wednesday evening with a cocktail party for arrivals at the Lodge.

Thursday's festivities list dinner and TV football, a puppet show in the Lodge, and later a screening of Frank Sinatra's Oceans Eleven.

On Friday morning will be a turkey shoot at the gun club.

In the evening the Beach and Tennis Club will produce A Night At the Races complete with eight race films, programs, mutual windows and dinner. Post race dancing is also on the card.

A polo field brunch will precede a Saturday morning tournament with the Pebble Beach All-Stars opposing two northern California teams in a round-robin event starring some of the district's high goal players.

That night the first meeting of the clans ever to be held at the Beach and Tennis Club takes place with the annual Tartan Ball.

This affair, commencing with cocktails, will offer an evening long show of bagpipers, dancers and balladeers who will perform between dinner and the wee small hours of the morning.

The Ball is open to Scottish Society members, Beach Club card holders and guests. Tickets may be secured from Society members.

Sunday's get-away day activities begin with a Fizz breakfast at the Lodge as the starting shot.

After a day of rest, males with any stamina left will gather at the Beach and Tennis Club for a Wolves Night preview of Christmas fashions, as offered by Marly May of Carmel.

Billed as a display of everything a good man should give his woman for Christmas, the show gets underway with cocktails at six and a steak dinner to follow.

Dr. Marlin returns from seminar

Carmel optometrist Dr. Robert Marlin has returned from the Scope – Fall '69 Vision Care Seminar in San Francisco sponsored by the California Optometric Association.

Dr. Marlin was one of over 500 optometrists who attended the two-day post-graduate seminar on Nov. 15 and 16, which featured University of Houston College of Optometry Professor Dr. James F. Koetting, an authority on learning disorders; Dr. Paul Shulman, Illinois College of Optometry Professor who lectures on visual implications of systemic disease and Dr. Robert A. Koetting, a St. Louis, Missouri optometrist who presented new contact lens techniques.

Fourteen other vision care experts conducted post-graduate courses on ocular pathology, low vision, strabismus diagnosis, special tests, practice management, and a special program for optometric assistants during the two-day Seminar.

Dr. Marlin is a member of the Central Coast Optometric Society and the California Optometric Association.

The Department of Geology collections at the California Academy of Sciences in San Francisco's Golden Gate Park contain more than two million invertebrate fossils and about 10,000 recent shells.

Kiwanians hear Institute head

The Carmel Kiwanis Club last week heard Gene England, director of the Monterey Institute of Speech and Hearing, explain how his center not only attempts to help people with speech and hearing problems, but also problem students.

The institute is now four years old and serves an average of a thousand people a day, England related, and he said the big job for the staff of twelve is to teach the process of learning. "Problem students have failed lessons of past years and have now fallen way behind," England said. "The reward system makes them want to learn, and because this is a new desire, learning is usually rapid."

The staff's main drive is a systematic attack on poor progress. According to England, "if you reward a behavior it will tend to be repeated. If the behavior is bad and is rewarded by attention, it will be repeated again to gain attention."

PARTY PLANS . . .

by Phyllis Jervey

"Parties Before and After"

By the time you read this we're sure you have fully planned, if not already cooked your, Thanksgiving dinner. The word "leftover" doesn't sound appetizing and we'll dispense with that term. Instead it is rather amusing to recall a few historical facts about holiday gatherings.

Way back, a feast given by King Ahasuerus lasted seven days and nights. But that bash paled when compared to the luxuries Roman nobles lavished on themselves. At Nero's perfume rained from ceilings. Emperor Caligula tossed pearls into the vinegar. Why?

A favorite pastime of Henry VIII was to watch live birds try to fly from a huge pie when the crust was "carved". King James I, knighted his preferred cut of meat. "I hereby dub thee Sir Loin" his majesty proclaimed.

We Americans, who have discarded peerage and royalty, still continue to throw parties fit for a queen and/or prince, king and/or consort.

Our innovation is Brunch. Since it is a 20th Century commodity, perhaps its historical significance might somehow continue on the moon. Even simple parties, like breakfast-brunch, have roots in our country. Thomas Jefferson tangled his surprised guests in knots with spaghetti. His impromptu affairs took on a new twist.

Not to be outdone, George Washington planned the most ingenious party in this nation's history, even though George in so doing breached etiquette. Our first president crossed the Delaware Christmas night thereby interrupting the "frivolous" festivities of 1,000 Hessian troops. Could the Father of our country have been this new land's first gatecrasher?

Back to NOW! How to fix that turkey staring at you from the "fridge" the next morning? We'll think this one over after first deciding: When is a late breakfast a brunch?

For adults only, the answer is to start off with a Bloody Mary or a Screwdriver. The royal way is to mix one part vodka, 3 parts heavy tomato juice, a dash of lemon juice and Worcestershire, Tabasco, salt and pepper. Take advantage of the 20th century and shake over cracked ice and strain into a chilled pitcher. Then pour.

For the Screwdriver, it's one jigger of vodka over ice in a tall glass. Fill with fresh orange juice and stir.

The under-age have cokes, tomato and orange juice with a splash of Angostura bitters. Then what to do with the turkey?

Turkey in the Straw

Three cups diced cooked turkey; 2 cans cream of mushroom soup; 1 can chicken broth, or turkey essence if you've taken time for all that; ½ cup dry white wine; 1 can mushroom stems and pieces; chopped parsley and pimiento; 2 cans shoestring potatoes.

Mix liquids, add turkey . . but if enough is not left, add some canned chicken and ham plus hard cooked eggs; season to taste with salt, pepper, paprika and herbs with the mushrooms and juice. Heat in double boiler, then at table put this into chafing dish. Have a bowl of heated canned shoestring potatoes and make a nest of these on each plate, topping them with the hot turkey mixture. Pass the chopped parsley and pimiento for each to decorate his own . . . chutney, sliced toasted almonds, and cranberry sauce may also go the rounds! Hot cornbread, made from a mix . . coffee. Thanksgiving aftermath minus effort!

This also has appetite appeal, especially the next day.

Turkey Tomatoes

Six "beefsteak" tomatoes (large and firm); 2 cups cooked turkey; 1 cup diced celery; ¼ cup chopped green pepper; 2 T. chopped onion; salt, paprika, mayonnaise and lemon juice mixed; grated American cheese.

Remove stem end from tomatoes; take out centers and seeds leaving half an inch "wall". Drain upside-down while preparing filling. Sprinkle inside of tomatoes with salt and pepper lightly. Combine rest of ingredients and fill tomatoes. Top with grated cheese. Bake at 375 F. for 15 minutes. But why not serve these "love apples" well chilled and seasoned? Surround with tiny butter lettuce hearts, with real apples and cheese wedges, hot biscuits . . . coffee.

To go back to Thomas Jefferson and his surprise spaghetti, we'll finish off with a delicious dish from a new booklet called "Magic With Leftovers" by Lousene Rousseau Brunner, although we still don't like that word . . . leftover . . but this is too apropos to pass over.

Turkey-Spaghetti Now and Then

Two cups LO (the tactful way to say what's still around) turkey, bite size; 1 pkg. thin spaghetti; ¼ cup, each, diced canned pimiento, fresh green pepper and onion; 1 can cream of mushroom soup undiluted; turkey broth or gravy diluted with wine; freshly grated or unopened jar Parmesan cheese.

Cook spaghetti according to pkg. directions al dente, or as our LO author succulently says . . . "with a touch of chewiness still left." In a large bowl mix everything excepting the cheese. Pour into casserole; top with cheese and bake about 45 min. in a 350 F., or moderate oven. Recipes given serve 6.

Something to sing about, if you aspire to do a true "Turkey Tetrazzini . . . is to forget about the leftovers. Everything cooked especially the contents are uncanned and a chef par excellence prepares, let's say supervises, the diva tastes and sings again."

Also on Friday, the day after Thanksgiving, you can have a complete change of pace. Go to see "Doing It Danish" at the Sunset Center at 8:15 p.m. Before or after the Explorama film, serve a smorgasbord, as prepared in Denmark.

In Copenhagen, Oskar Davisen offers 200 varieties of open sandwiches. For us, four of these is enough, plus two salads and one of the easy desserts purchased at Carmel's Royal Danish Bakery.

Each type of open sandwich is served on a separate platter: smoked turkey and/or ham, fish, egg slices and assorted Danish cheeses on dark bread accompanied by sweet butter. Decorate with chopped chives, radishes and pickles. Good imported beer and its another party.

Hostess hints

In the year 1621, Pilgrim housewives had many of the same Thanksgiving problems as homemakers of today. For instance, what to do with leftover turkey?

According to Governor Bradford's diary, they prepared a Thanksgiving feast that included, "as much fowle as with a little helpe beside, served the company almost a weeke."

That must have been a lot of turkey, because the Governor invited Chief Massasoit and 90 of his Indian braves to join his hardy band of 54 Pilgrims for the first Thanksgiving dinner.

Pity the poor Puritan women cooking turkeys and pumpkin pie with their primitive fireplaces and ovens. It was a far cry from today's electric ovens and electric rotisseries. But there are a few things the early pilgrims did to celebrate Thanksgiving that we might well borrow today. Here are a combination of "then"

Movie Review

Darby O'Gill and the Little People – Walt Disney's delightful story of elderly Irish caretaker, Darby O'Gill (Albert Sharpe) and his adventures with the king of the leprechauns. Magic, Irish comedy, and a pleasant romance, naturally all turns out well. At the Valley Cinema.

Fanny Hill – An updated Swedish version of John Cleland's classic novel. Now set in Stockholm the film stars Dinan Kjaer in the title role. At the Steinbeck.

The Undefeated – Battling it out toe to toe and side by side, they rode where no one else dared – Civil War drama starring John Wayne and Rock Hudson at the State.

Star! – Julie Andrews, director Robert Wise and producer Saul Chaplin team up on this, and although it's no "Sound of Music," which all thre worked on previously, Star! is good theater. With Richard Crenna, Michael Craig and Daniel Massey. At the Village.

2001 – A Space Odyssey – Some of the greatest process photography ever brought to the screen is in this top production of the history of Man. Returning to Cinema 70, this film has played to packed houses everywhere.

Planet of the Apes – Science fiction and fantasy as Charlton Heston leads a crew of space explorers to a planet where the apes rule, but with the aid of a beautiful girl Heston deciphers all the monkey business. At the Marina Automovie.

Battle of Britain – An all-star cast headed by Laurence Olivier, Michael Caine, Christopher Plummer, Susannah York and Robert Shaw in a tense drama of Spitfires against Stukas during World War II. At the Grove.

DeSade – Based on the life of notorious Marquis de Sade, this stars Keir Dullea in the title role, and Senta Berger as the girl who "turns on" the hedonistic marquis. At the Hill.

Guns of the Magnificent Seven – A sequel to "The Magnificent Seven" and also deals with the Mexican revolution. George Kennedy has been added to the group. At the State.

If It's Tuesday, This Must be Belgium – Great scenes of the show places of Europe, plus some skillful performances. A busload of tourists in a whirlwind jaunt of Europe. At the Grove.

Krakatoa, East of Java – Maximilian Shell, Diane Baker, Brian Keith, Sal Mineo, Barbara Werle, and Rossano Brazzi in a volcanic story about a volcano. Sunken treasure and all that stuff added. At the State.

Stage Review

Someone Waiting – At the Circle Theater. Skullduggery and skulking about in the best tradition of the suspense play. Revenge, hate and comedy all mixed about to produce a funny, terrifying evening with a topnotch cast headed by Roy Baxter and Gertrude Chappell. Better make reservations by calling 624-2669.

Black Comedy – at the Studio Theater. A comedy of confusion in which a conniving couple stage a luckless hoax on her stuffy father. Adding to their confusion is a power failure skillfully directed by Bill Asp. Edie Donahoe, and Richard Klein play the hapless couple with George Smith as the girl's stodgy father. Better make reservations by calling 624-1661 or 624-2321.

State landmarks booklet is 'stocking stuffer'

Last Christmas when the State Department of Parks and Recreation offered its popular California Historical Landmakrs booklet for sale as a "stocking stuffer," the result was a complete sellout. This year, the department has ordered an additional printing of the updated publication in order to have plenty on hand for the 1969 season.

Landmark data is presented in numerical order by registration (highway marker) number, cross-indexed by county. Also listed are the many historic parks and monuments operated and maintained by the state.

The price is one dollar, including tax and postage. It can be purchased at many state park offices or by sending a check or money order to the Reservation Office, Department of Parks and Recreation, P.O. Box 2390, Sacramento 95811.

Ferra Show at U.C. Santa Cruz

An exhibit of paintings by internationally known Carmel artists Francisco Fernandez Ferro is currently being shown in the Fireside Lounge and Library at Crown College on the University of California, Santa Cruz campus.

Fernandez Ferro was born in 1909 in Granada, Spain, where he studied drawing and painting at the Escuela de Artes & Oficios.

Early in 1936 he came to New York, where he was successively a student and assistant professor at the New York School of Fine and Applied Arts, and did research for movies such as "Gone with the Wind," and theatrical sets in the studio of Joseph B. Platt.

On his return to the United States, he gave a one-man show of his paintings at the Courvoisier Galleries in San Francisco. His work is now represented in many private collections. The artists now lives in Carmel, where he is a member of the Carmel Art Association.

The Crown College exhibit will be open to the public without charge through Nov. 30.

DONALD "PUTT" PUTMAN

Donald Putnam to Show at Perry House in December

Donald "Putt" Putman is working on stained glass window for the TV show "Mission Impossible."

Putt said, "It's too bad they are going to destroy the window with an explosion, but that's show biz - it's in the script.

Putt has alos done copies of Rembrant and portraits of many stars for the movie industry.

A Californian, Putman attended Fresno State College and is a graduate of Art Center College of Design where he is now a painting instructor.

Putt's young life has been full of invaluable experiences while searching for subject matter. He has traveled with the Ringling Brothers Circus in the United States, and as an acrobat with the Razzori Circus in South America. He has done part time acting as a comedian and energetically finds time to be active as such at present.

"Donald Putman aspires to become one of the finest painters in the United States. He is a man who knows what art means, what is needed to produce art and how to translate his knowledge and ideals to canvas. He has the drive, imagination, a background of experience and above all, enthusiasm. He is able to paint the essence of what he has seen – seen from the view-point of a philosopher, an artist and a lover of humanity."

Those elected are Miss Anne Barrows of Carmel Valley; Edward G. Berstein of Carmel. Mrs. John J. Green of Pebble Beach and Mrs. Seeley Mudd of Los Angeles and this area. They will be officially welcomed and introduced by Festival President Hugh Hannon at the January meeting of the Board of Directors.

Other officers and board members of the Bach Festival are Dr. Raymond Kendall, first vice-president; Mrs. Walter Alfred deMartini, second vice-president; Francie Lloyd, third vice-president; Mrs. Arthur Dahl, secretary; Robert Arenz, treasurer; Miss Joy E. Belden, Howard S. Bucquet, Mrs. Calvin Collins, Arthur L. Dahl, Mrs. Monte Harrington, Mrs. R. Stafford Hughes, Mrs. Walter Lehmann, Dr. Arnold Manor, The Rev. H.M.M. Nicholas and Fritz T. Wurzmann.

Sandor Salgo, conductor and musical director of the Carmel Bach Festival, was in Los Angeles recently to conduct preliminary auditions for the 1970 Festival Chorale.

Accompanied by Mrs. Salgo, director of the Festival Chorale, Salgo also investigated the music of early California Missions which he hopes to perform during the 1970 Festival in observance of this area's bicentennial celebration.

Mr. and Mrs. Salgo were joined in Los Angeles by Mr. Ralph Linsley, general coordinator and harpsichordist of the Bach Festival.

Expert predicts disaster with present water planning

California's present water resources planning poses threats of massive ecological damage to the state, a leading environmentalist charged last week.

Speaking at a Sacramento news conference sponsored by the state-wide organization, California Tomorrow, Frank M. Stead, former chief of State Division of Environmental Sanitation, outlined a "New California Water Plan" to meet the state's future water needs. Stead said the new approach is urgently required because the alternative is to proceed as at present with a successsion of "inadequate and environmentally damaging measures."

Now a private consultant on environmental problems, Stead details his plan in an article in the winter issue of Cry California, quarterly journal of California Tomorrow.

The Stead plan is based on five "bold steps":

1. New urban developments to accomodate the second twenty million Californias should be in new cities suited to enjoyable living and located in accordance with a comprehensive state land-use program.
2. Waste water from cities, industries and agriculture should be reclaimed, demineralized and reused or recycled, rather than be discharged to the ocean, or to bays and estuaries, where it is lost as a water resource.
3. Each region of the state – the coastal region, the desert and plateau region, and the Great Central Valley – from here on out, should meet its water needs from its own resources.
4. Coastal areas should meet their ultimate needs by sea-water conversion, or offshore conveyance of water from the North Coast, captured as it reaches the coastline.
5. The Central Valley should meet its ultimate needs by transferring a portion of winter flood flows of the Sacramento River to the San Joaquin Valley in a peripheral canal and utilize the underground storage capacity in the San Joaquin Valley to smooth out cycles of wet and dry years. (Stead emphasizes such transfers must take place in the peak flows of the winter months only.)

Stead continues:

"Some of these points are, of course, not entirely new. But the disposition to apply them vigorously is lackg in current statew state water planning. For example, the state has long acknowledged that the reclamation of waste water should be practiced to a degree, and that sea-water conversion will be needed at some future time. The state intendes to transfer some winter flood water from the Sacramento River to the San Luis Reservoir in the San Joaquin Valley, and has long recognized the necessity of utilizing the ground-water reservoirs of the valley conjunctively with surface reservoirs.

"But the main point is that the state, considering itself irrevocably bound by decisions already made, proposes an utterly inadequate application of these principles andproposes to continue on a course that many responsible observers believe will irreparably damage the San Joaquin delta, worsen the present pollution of the San Francisco Bay system and destroy the wild rivers of the North Coast, including the trinity, Eel, and Mad rivers."

The gigantic inter-basin, north-to-south transfer of water proposed in the present plan will leave the state ecologically bankrupt, Stead asserts.

Warning that Northern California will be a victim of heavy environmental degradation if present proposals are carried out, Stead recalls that the water planners promised this would not occur when the people voted for the plan in 1959.

He adds: "The planners also promised to take only unneeded water, and hence any argument based on the plea that Southern California or the San Joaquin Valley or any other area is 'entitled' to any given supply is clearly out of order."

Stead concludes: "These fundamental changes in the management of the water resources of over half of the total area of the state would require legal, political and institutional steps of historic proportions – but they could be taken – and if we decide now that this is the path we want to take, we could solve California's water problems once and for all."

CARE director asks for holiday donations

"As Americans gather their families and friends together to share their blessings over tables laden with food, I feel that it is a particularly appropriate time to remind our citizens of the needy people overseas," Miss Molly Farmin, Regional Director of CARE, commented in duscussing the CARE 1969-70 food crusade.

A CARE package provides approximately 25 pounds of life-giving, nourishing food. Contents include U.S. farm donations and foods bought by CARE to match local needs. CARE also adds products donated by private firms such as baby foods and canned soups. Buying, packing, and delivery costs are balanced to achieve the average $1 cost per package.

"If, during this holiday season, you wish to share you blessings with the many who are less fortunate, the CARE food crusade is the ideal way of expressing your concern," Miss Farmin said.

Thanksgiving contributions may be sent to CARE, Inc., 444 Market Street, San Francisco, California 94111.

Junior League's 'Children's Theatre'--Everybody gets into the act

". . . These are remarkable kids. They have a feeling for each other that comes from depending on each other . .,."

This is how Marcia Gambrell Hovick director of the Children's Experimental Theatre, describes the boys and girls currently working in the Theater's lab sessions.

The Children's Theater was initiated by the Junior League of the Monterey Peninsula 16 years ago to bring live theater to the children of the county.

"Theater," Miss Hovick explains, 'is the most universal art. Everyone understands it, but it is unavailable to children except in their own play activities at home."

Miss Hovick sees the Children's Theater as a vehicle of communication. To create another person is to understand him, and students in the lab sessions, organized by age, do exercises in concentration, communication and expression, combined with games that are designed to give them awareness as individuals as well as actors.

The greatest achievement for the youngsters in the program is to each the status of an actor perofrming for other children in any of the approximately 85 performances given as special programs in schools each year. Miss Hovick writes her own adaptation of themes from classical literature, mythology, folk-lore, fairy tales and historical situations.

After competitive casting, three of four casts are chosen for each play. This allows as many children as possible to take part in production tours and to insure that they will miss few days of school while performing.

Turning out three performances a day is not easy. The company meets at eight in the morning to drive to the host school. There all the hands assist in unloading sets and costumes, carrying them into the auditorium and erecting the set. Finally, with the help of their director and staff they get into costumes and make-up, ready for performance.

The play is given in any large general purpose room in the school. As many as 600 children sit on the floor, where they feel close to the actors and command a good view of the stage. Many of the productions are designed so that the actors follow pathways through the audience to reach scenes in other parts of the room.

After the performance the actors change clothes, load their equipment and move on to another school. Three or four performances make a full day, and tired but happy, the young troupers arriver home in time for supper.

This week, the members of the Children's Theater are launching a jaunty production of "Little Red Riding Hood." Under the direction of Marcia Hovick, the five casts selected will tour schools on the Peninsula to once again delight spectators young and old with the magic of live theater.

The rash of 'X' and 'R' rated motion pictures--who's to blame?

(Editor's Note: There has been considerable furor in the nation's news media about the quality, or lack of quality, in the motion pictures being produced by Hollywood film makers.

Tom Graff, operator of the Village Theater in Carmel has called to our attention the article below that appeared in the Motion Picture Herald for Oct. 22.

Since we feel it truly reflects the attitudes not only of the exhibitors, but as the public as well, we are reprinting the article in the public interest.)

by RON PENNINGTON

HOLLYWOOD – "One of the few great rewards left for motion picture exhibitors is being able to stand in the lobby and greet people as they leave the theatre without being ashamed of what they just saw on your screen," said an exhibitors' spokesman recently. "And the greatest frustration and disappointment comes when an exhibitor finally gets a really good family program and no one comes to see it."

On the other hand, he continued, when an "R" or "X" rated film is playing, there are usually plenty of people at the theatre, but they often criticize the exhibitor for showing what they support by buying tickets.

"This hypocritical attitude on the part of audiences is the dilemma of theatre owners today," he said.

Stating that he has talked with major circuits and independent exhibitors throughout the country, the circuit executive said it is getting to the point where exhibitors are afraid to put a "family" label on motion pictures because, if they do, they automatically seem to risk losing a major part of the potential audience.

"We're the victims of a movie-going hypocrisy," the spokesman said. "When a family-type film comes around, where are the people who stand up in PTA meetings and deplore the films that are being made today! Yet these same mothers and housewives are the ones who are going to see pictures like 'Midnight Cowboy.'"

"We have disappointing support for family films," he stated. "Especially from those who cry loudest for them."

He also cited the fact that "plenty of little old ladies from Pasadena are going to see 'I Am Curious–Yellow.' They are saying one thing and doing another," he said.

"In turn," he continued, "the producers and distributors are going to make films for the market, as would any other manufacturer."

During the past summer, there have been a good number of "G" rated pictures available. These included "If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium"; "Krakatoa – East of Java"; "The Love Bug"; "The Maltese Bippy"; "My Side of the Mountain"; "Oliver!"; "Peter Pan"; "Popi"; "Rascal"; "Ring of Bright Water"; "Run Wild, Run Free"; "Those Daring Young Men in Their Jaunty Jalopies"; and "True Grit."

Of these 13 "G" rated films, seven were reported by MOTION PICTURE HEARLD (Sept. 10, 1969) as being among the top-grossing films of June, July and August, according to reports sent in by circuit and independent film bookers.

These seven were "If It's Tuesday, This Must Be Belgium"; "Krakatoa – East of Java"; "The Love Bug"; "Oliver!"; "Peter Pan"; "Popi"; and "True Grit."

Of these seven, the exhibitors' spokesman noted that two, "Krakatoa – East of Java" and "Oliver!" were reserved-seat or reserved-house attractions. Also, three of the films, "If It's Tuesday, This Must be Belgium"; "Popi"; and "True Grit", were questioned by parents and others as being "too sexy" or "too violent" for children. The spokesman said that "The Love Bug" and "Peter Pan" proved good in most situations. But the rest, playing in multiple runs, "proved very diappointing. Later, they made great second features," he said.

Which, the theatre man noted, brings up another problem faced by many exhibitors. How do they balance a program when most theatres necessarily must have a policy of not doubling a "G" picture with an "M" or "R" film?

On the problem of people even questioning the content of some of the "G" films, he said he didn't know what the answer was. "Some have suggested an 'F' rating for motion pictures of interest solely for children," he said. "But this is questionable because soon you will have a different rating for each letter of the alphabet."

Another increasing problem is enforcing the restrictions on "X" rated films playing at drive-ins.

"Quite often," teh spokesman said, "parents show up at drive-ins playing 'X' rated films with small children in the back seat of the car. The code says no one under 16 (some theatres up this to 17 or 18) allowed. So you have to turn them away. These parents get indignant and say they can't afford a baby sitter, but that they want to see the film. They also point out the fact that the kids will probably go to sleep right after the cartoon and wouldn't understand the subject matter, anyway. It's their responsibility, these parents say, and they should be able to take their own children to see anything they choose.

"What is the theatre owner going to do?" the exhibitor continued. "We try to enforce the Code in the best interests of everyone – as a guide to movie going – and right away we are challenged. We can't guide people who don't wnat to be guided and we're not censors. In fact, the exhibitor could be taken to court by some of these people and he would probably lose.

"Where is it all heading?" he asked "I don't really know and the exhibitors I have talked to really don't know. Talking to PTA groups and civic bodies seems to be leading nowhere. It poses a major problem nationally.

"This movie-going hypocrisy is a growing trend. Those who berate and dride the movies most know least about them. Or, they have not seen the movies they criticize. Or, they criticize because it's 'fashionable', and then they, themselves, wait in line or sneak into the 'M', 'R' and 'X' pictures.

"All the while, the exhibitor is conscientiously trying only 'to inform' and 'to warn' prospective patrons and parents on movie content.

Who's To Know

We have a new arrival in Carmel Valley Village from San Francisco, where she was born some twenty years ago. She is dark haired, the thick fluffy curling kind, and has clear blue eyes fringed in black; and clear creamy skin. Her Father's family came from Southern Greece; her Mother hails from Pasadena with a far away background of French and German ancestors. Add all this together and you get one lively, bright, aware young lady named Jennifer Prongos.

The middle one of five children born to the Prongos she took her turn to work in her family's candy store at the tender age of 10. All the children were brought up with a strong sense of responsibility, and sense of accomplishment, for they all learned to work the tricks of candy making, and chocolate dipping, and then ice cream making, and sundae topping making, and finally manned the fountain lunch that finally became part of this now 33-year-old San Francisco landmark called the Three Mills Creamery.

In High School she majored in English and took work preparatory to becoming an English teacher at S.F. City College and then at S.F. State. Somehow this did not tend to launch her in the teaching profession. Always an avid reader, she decided that if she were ever to have the uninterrupted time without pressures, to know more about the world, its peoples, its philosophies, its art forms, its foods, its languages.. then it was high time she quit reading about it and started to experience all of it.

A girl friend, also of the same mind about seeing the world and all that is in it, and our heroine Jennifer, then started out and arrived first in New York where they absorbed its cement canyons and toiling humanity and elbowing crowds for all of two days then took off for Luxemborg. It was November and one morning they awoke to find themselves just too cold to get out of bed. This decided them to get with the sun and warmth of Greece in Athens, then on to Italy. By this time she had discovered that the restaurants they had frequented, found it impossible to serve food hot . . . . including American run hotels. This continued all through Europe. Italy meant Rome to her for their world of great Art simply stretched out like an avalanche, engulfing all they ahd experienced ever before. Then Spain meant the Alhambra where they stayed for one month drinking in all that beauty and wealth of architectural inspiration...At no time did they travel by plan. They moved when the spirit moved them and finally arrived in Africa where they were robbed which somewhat dampened their travel plans and after a month moved on to Casa Blanca after wiring for enough money to fly home.

Thank Heaven home came to mean Carmel Valley before many months had flown, and with it a charming mountain top cottage in the Robles and a niche in the Keeping Room fantasmagoria. She will dispense with the good Quiche Lorraine, and Beef Pot au Feu, Frozen Mousse, and try her fine hand at baking bread (as well as Claudia has for year). She is exceptionally gifted and will help make your welcome more enjoyable.

Goings On

Roger Fremier was up cavorting about on the vacant lot across the street posing all manner of models against rough cement walls, old fences, and what not . . . no doubt getting some good shots of things the "39 craftsmen" are about to share with the public the first week in December at the La Playa Hotel in Carmel. Looked intriguing. Larry Cummings reports that a new talent, namely Craig Learner, artist and writer, has moved into one of his studios. Welcome Craig! Marzi is very enthused about the La Playa Hotel showing for the 39 Craftsmen too, and all of his group are among those included in the collection offered for slae to the public.

The Keeping Room is having a show also of "Aunt Clara and her Neighbors", a collection of antiquitous oils done by Jerry Edlund of Carmel Valley, Sausalito, Cuernavaca, Mexico, and briefly, Rock Island. Most whimsical, they are full of charm and entertainment, and captivate the imagination immediately. We would be hard pressed to make a choice of just one out of the marvelous nostalgic array of Aunt Clara's friends. A must see starting at the Keeping Room Dec. 1.

Irene Baldwin the stalwart, is well on the way to recovery, and we are glad for the good news. Any day now Will's Fargo will burst into its annual delight of garlands and swags and nice Christmasy fragrances and twinkling lights and Auld Ang Syne Gee . . . it isn't too long now until they finale for the year . .oh hdear... wish it weren't so.

It's later than you think . . . December 10th is our deadline date for out of town mailing from Carmel Valley . . . So Marian Wilson suggests a soon trip to the In and Outdoor Shop where all Christmas is breaking into twinkling lights, sparkling decor, holiday fragrances like Bayberry and Pine, and delightful gift wraps and ribbons and yarns and stickers and tags and all purchases are gift wrapped free of charge. Next door at the Carmel Valley Gallery, Marian has some perfect jewels in the way of really serious and distinctly lavish gifts to be cherished for this lifetime and many more, as heirlooms, for she has fine art paintings by many many nationally recognized artists in a very realistic price range. Glen Mewhinney of the Village Art Center has a most exciting new line of Christmas Tree Ornaments for those of you who have put off too long the making of your own. Virginia at the Ripling River Resort keeps having one thrilling happening after another . . . last week's being the Anita Miller wedding. She loves doing these big parties and does them so well. And last but not least . . . Marzi pottery are having their Day After Thanksgiving driveway sale of seconds . . . a boon to collectors of their fine work. At the same time take a good look around inside for their Christmas look will be all about including a new table by Lloyd Gillespie.

Multi-media's control of the senses MPC topic

Why is the medium the message?

This and other questions will be explored by Harley Parker, associate and consultant to Marshall McLuhan, in a lecture at Monterey Peninsula College Friday, Dec. 5.

Parker, a distinguished artists, educator, author, lecturer and psecialist in communications theory, will speak on "The Impact of Media on Society" at 8 p.m. in the National Guard Armory at MPC. Free tickets to the lecture may be obtained by mail or in person afternoons from 1:30 to 4:30 at the college's community services office.

It is Parker's theory that "today's mind, restructured by electronic methods of communication, responds differently to yesterday's emphasis on print. Future media will be multi-media, taking advantage of all the sense. This affects all aspects of our society, now and in the years to come."

Closely associated with McLuhan, director the University of Toronto's Centre for Culture and Technology, for more than 15 years, Parker was previously an associate professor at Fordham University. An honors graduate of the Ontario College of Art, where he later taught design and color for a dozen years, he has exhibited his paintings widely in Europe, North America and South America.

Parker and Marshall McLuhan collaborated on a recently published book, "Through the Vanishing Point," which exemplifies new concepts of space in poetry and painting, the two are continuing their dialogue on a series of LP records, with Parker seeing communications theory through the eyes of an artists and designer and McLuhan through his background in literature.

Bank head is confidant

California's diversified economy will prevent any statewide economic slowdown as strengths offset weaknesses, Emmett G. Solomon, chairman of the board of Crocker-Citizens National Bank, told a press conference in San Francisco.

At the same time, Solomon said "until there is a very definite move toward easing nationwide monetary policy, interest rates will stay where they are and will move along on a plateau until at least early in 1970". Overall, Solomon said "there is no sign of a slowdown statewide."

Leslie C. Peacock, a leading economist and the bank's executive vice president, said that "many economists would pick California as the most ideally diversified state in the union in economic terms." He added that "there is even much diversification within the three most important economic areas of agriculture, manufacturing and the service-related field."

Commenting on the state's prospects in terms of national economy, Peacock said "if monetary and fiscal restraint policies work as the adminstration expects, then we will expect a slower but more balanced rate of expansion in California."

Bank declares stock dividend

Directors of Crocker National Corporation have declared a regular quarterly dividend of $.40 on the corporations capital stock. The dividend is payable Jan. 15 to shareholders of record Dec. 25.

Subsidiaries of Crocker National, a one-bank holding company, include Crocker-Citizens National Bank and the McAlister Leasing Group.

'Plan now,' Talcott urges high school job seekers

Congressman Burt L. Talcott (California, 12th District) counsels high school and college students to start planning now for next summer's jobs.

Mr. Talcott said, "each year there are a limited number of opportunities for interesting summer jobs with agencies of the Federal Government. Since these jobs are filled on a merit basis, it is important for interested applicants to apply early.

"Some jobs require eligibility in the Summer Employment Examination. These include seasonal assistants with the Post Office Department, and jobs common to most Federal Agencies such as typists, stenographers, clerks and engineering or science aides.

"The examination will be given in Hanford, Monterey, Salinas, San Luis Obispo, and Santa Cruz, on three dates: Applications received by Dec. 5 will be scheduled for the test on Jan. 10; ones received by Jan. 9 will be scheduled on Feb. 14, and those received by Feb. 4 will be scheduled for test on March 14, 1970.

Applications postmarked after February 4, 1970 will not be accepted.

"Federal Agencies will begin making selections after the results of the second test have been processed. Interested applicants can write to me for a copy of 'Summer Jobs in Federal Agencies' or any additional information you may require.

"Jobs for which the Summer Employment Examination is not required, include those for which a college degree or equivalent experience is needed, so-called blue collar jobs, and certain jogs in the Department of Agriculture and Interior, such as park ranger and forest technician."

Yule time events at Woman's Club

There will be two programs of great interest to the members and guests of the Carmel Woman's Club during the coming month.

On Dec. 1 at 2 p.m. Miss Florence Locke will tell the little-known Christmas story by Charles Dickens called "Six Poor Travelers."

Miss Locke will be remembered as having presented a delightful recital of The Love Poems of Robert and Elizabeth Browning last year. She has for many years been the literary director of the San Francisco Browning Society.

The members of the Board of the Carmel Woman's Club will be responsible for the refreshments assisted in serving by Mrs. Eugene Ingalls, Mrs. R. M. Macpherson, Mrs. F.J. Reynolds and Miss Marion Stevens.

The 44th anniversary of the club will be celebrated by a birthday party on Dec. 5 at 2 p.m. with Mrs. Fred Dorr, Mrs. Russell H. Garetson, Mrs. Clarence Ridley, and Mrs. H. M. Wight in charge.

The Carmel High School Girls' Ensemble under the direction of Henry Avila, will entertain with Christmas carols. There will be a door prize contributed by Mrs. Wight and donations of $1 will be applied to the Club's furnace fund.

Youth Center's 'Christmas Capers' now in rehearsal

Rehearsals have started for the 20th annual "Christmas Capers" presented by the Carmel Youth Center.

The "Capers" go on at Sunset Auditorium Friday and Saturday, Dec. 19 and 20, and admission to the performances is always free, since the "Capers" is the Youth Center's way of saying "Thank You" for the public support they receive during the year.

However, according to Jack Giles, genial director of the Youth Center, the group presently faces a financial crisis of sorts.

The primary source of revenue for the members of the Center is the operation of Bingmobiles at the annual Crosby Clambake.

At present the coffers are completely depleted, and will remain so until January unless some generous citizens feel motivated to donate a small sum or two to assist in the continued operation of the Center for the next two months.

Contributions are completely tax deductible, and should be made to Carmel Youth Center, Box 2399, Carmel 93921.

But whether you contribute or not, the entire membership of the Youth Center urges everyone to attend the "Christmas Capers" on Dec. 19 and 20.

For free.

CUSD urges children to see 'Sesame Street' on TV

Parents of preschool and primary children are being urged to encourage their children to view a new television program. Dr. Harris A. Taylor, Superintendent, Carmel Unified School District, has called attention to SEASAME STREET, a television series introduced last week on Channel Nine, KQED.

Developed by National Educational Television, SESAME STREET is said to be the most completely researched and thoroughly publicized show in television history.

Dr. Taylor has long been interested in early childhood education. In reviewing international programs and research, he has found that learning in pre-school years is essential for later success in school. SESAME STREET provides an opportunity for young children to learn such basics as the alphabet, numbers, time and space concepts, and problem-solving skills.

SEASAME STREET is being broadcast on KQED daily, Monday through Friday, from 11:30 a.m. to 12:30 p.m. A monthly parent-teacher guide is available. The guide lists the objctives of each day's program and suggests activities and games for children to follow up each day's learning. The first issue is free from Parent's Guide, Box 9140, St. Paul, Minnesota 55177. Guides for the six month series will cost two dollars.

Dr. Taylor urges all parents to make this program available for their children.

Christian Science Bible Lesson

These words of Jesus are from the Lesson-Sermon to be read this Sunday in all Christian Science churches: "If I cast out devils by the Spirit of God, then the Kingdom of God is come unto you." The subject is "Ancient and Modern Necromancy, alias Mesmerism and Hypnotism, Denounced."

A passage from Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures by Mary Baker Eddy reads: "Jesus cast out evil and healed the sick, not only without drugs, but without hypnotism, which is the reverse of ethical and pathological Truth-power."

Services are being held at 1st Church of Christ, Scientist, Carmel.

All are invited to attend.

CSAA warns auto sellers

A private individual selling his own car or other motor vehicle is wide open to certain hazards, one of which is the prospective buyer who takes the vehicle for a trial ride and never returns.

The California State Automobile Association reports that a surprising number of people have their car, truck or motorcycle stolen when a person posing as an interested buyer takes the vehicle and never returns. The worst part of it is that the police or other law enforcement agencies can take no immediate action in such a case because permission has been given to drive the vehicle. Police investigation of the case cannot begin until the person who has lost his car files a theft complaint.

To avoid this unfortunate possibility, the CSAA offers the following advice to anyone selling a motor vehicle.

1. Always go with the person in your vehicle when he takes it for a trial drive.
2. When a motorcycle is involved, the only safe way is to have the prospective buyer give you a cash deposit equal to the price you are asking for the vehicle.
3. If the person says he will leave his own car or motorcycle as security while he takes yours for a test spin, it may be no security at all. The California Highway Patrol reports that in many instances the vehicle left for security is a stole vehicle.
4. If the person says he wants to buy your vehicle and offers a check, don't release the vehicle until the check has cleared the bank.

Consumer Power

By Yvonne Earnst

I am thankful for Thanksgiving, when I can pause and review the many things for which I am truly thankful, that I usually accept without thinking.

I am thankful that I am alive.

I am thankful that, where I live, I am free to say and to do as I please, within the bounds of my own conscience and the laws of my society.

I am thankful that, by speaking and working hard, even one person can influence the shaping of the written and thy unwritten laws of my society.

I am thankful that I can recognize beauty in unlikely places, in the contented look of someone who feels needed.

I am thankful that friends of many backgrounds accept me for what I am.

I am thankful that I can sometimes put myself in someone else's shoes, the better to feel what he is feeling.

I am thankful that I am still learning and growing.

I am thankful that though prices are high, there are things to buy.

I am thankful that when I'm feeling very lonely in a crowd, someone smiles.

I am thankful that, though taxes are high, I have something to be taxed.

I am thankful that I realize that the needs of my body, my mind and my soul are intertwined and inseperable.

I am thankful that I can look at my children and see that they are healthy.

I am thankful that I have been spared the insidious horror of war.

I am thankful that I have been spared the stare of a starving child.

I am thankful for the realization that the hoors of war and starving children do exist that these things will not vanish by ignoring them.

I am thankful that I wish no child to die, and no adult, regardless of his or his leaders' beliefs or actions.

I am thankful for people who feed and care for the homeless, the ill, the unwanted.

I am thankful for the miracle of birth, the mystery of death.

I am thankful for friends who are quietly there when I didn't think they knew I needed them.

I am thankful for love, whether given, returned or not returned.

I am thankful for memories, both good and bad.

I am thankful that I can look forward to change and progress, and not dwell on past mistakes.

I am thankful for men brave enough to journey to the moon.

I am thankful for the foresight of men who put them there.

I am thankful for the many who use their lives for study, service and labor, from which I benefit.

I am thankful for parent, for husband, for child.

I am thankful for the butcher, the baker, the candlestick maker.

I am thankful for the liberal, the conservative, the mediator.

I am thankful for the farmer, the postman, the auto mechanic.

I am thankful for the protestor, the policeman, the policymaker.

I am thankful for the doctor, the lawyer, the Indian chief.

I am thankful for the grape grower, the governor, the Cesar Chavez.

I am thankful for the minister, the flock, the heathen.

I am thakful for the clerk, the typist, the newspaper editor.

I am thankful, especially, for the newspaper editor who prints what I write – whether or not he agrees with me; whether or not I agree with him; whether or not I agree with his advertisers.

I am thankful for courage and ethics and honor.

I am thankful for people power.

Librarian's Notebook

By Ruth Galvin Thornburg, City Librarian

Books on any phase of parapsychology go very well in this community and we have a book new-to-us which has been out some years. It is by Gina Cerminara, who wrote the book about Edgar Cayce which was entitled Many Mansions.

This one is called Many Lives, Many Loves. It is on reincarnation and parapsychology and persons who believe in these things and practice them. One part is especially interesting, being an account of Fred Kimball, a claryvoyant who is able to converse with animals.

Kimball asks questions of the animals in a normal tone of voice and then awaits their mental answers. Dr. Cerminara once invited sixteen strange persons to his home and they brought with them eight strange dogs.

Fre Kimball talked with all of the dogs and told their owners so many correct things and so many things which later proved to be true, that all doubts as to his ability were silenced completely. There is more in communication than meets the ear.

America and East Asia, A New Thirty Years War? is by Richard Harris and is not a cheerful book. The author is a far eastern specialist with The Times in London, and perhaps it is because he is a specialist that he is able to explain his views in a rather small book.

He says that the roots of the trouble in Korea and Vietnam lie in China, and that a doctrine of anti-communism is not enough to rally and hold these peoples to our cause. Once again we learn that it is not enough to be against an evil doctrine.

We must provide a positive principle of faith which will satisfy and endure. So far, we have not been able to do that. So do we drag on for thirty years? He thinkgs we may do just that.

Living as we do on the West Coast, and knowing as we do that railways are dliberately downgrading service in order to .cease carrying passengers at all, we are almost forced to travel by air. This is why the next book is a real shocker. It is called It Doesn't Matter Where You Sit and it is by Fred McClement who must be the Ralph Nader of the airplanes. It is a concise account of jet planes and why they have the accidents they do have, and how it is almost impossible to avert these accidents, thus you take your life in your hands when you fly.

No wonder most of us get the shakes before boarding a plane and breathe a sigh of relief when we finally land intact. Let's all just stay at home and be happy.

We have many more new books and the lists on the bulletin board tell you their names. Consult these lists for the latest on the latest.

Hooray, another rummage sale!

Nothing succeeds like success, and the Carmel American Legion Post (after observing the numerous successful rummage sales held in the Legion Hall this year) has announced plans to conduct a rummage sale from 9 to 5 Saturday, Dec. 13.

"We decided that rummage sales must be very popular, and therefore a painless way of raising money for needy causes," said Pat O'Malley, Commander of Carmel Post 512.

"Of course, we need a lot of donations from merchants and residents," he added. Anyone with furniture, clothing, appliances, books, toys, sporting goods, or anything else, is asked to call 624-8049 and arrange for the donations to be picked up.

Plans for the conduct of the sale will be finalized at the next meeting of Post 512, to be held at 8 p.m., Monday, Dec. 1.

With Bob Wood In Sacramento

Our environment – the water we drink the air we breathe, the recreational areas we enjoy – are of prime concern to an ever-increasing number of citizens today.

The problem of cleaning up man's mess in our streams and the air is a very real one for lawmakers.

The air pollution menace, so prevalent in our metropolitan areas for some years, is now spreading even to remote corners of our land, where even vegetation and sturday pine trees are being killed off for a simple lack of life-giving elements in the air.

One breakthrough in combating this situation came recently in the development of a truly economic method of converting our present internal-combustion gasoline engines to operate on natural gas, in either a liquified or gaseous state.

The State Public Works Department in Los Angeles has had ten cars so converted for more than a year now and I understand they intend to convert the bulk of their cars and trucks. One single car powered by natural gas instead of by gasoline will cut down on the air pollution emissions by almost 90%.

In other words, 10 cars powered by natural gas would emit no more harmful gases than one of our present type automobiles and they look the same as any other car but burn cleaner and are less expensive to operate. Converters developed to date run out of fuel after 75 to 100 miles. But some companies are working on machinery that would allow an auto running on liquified natural gas a range of up to 350 miles.

A few days ago I had to get to Sacramento early in the morning and the only departure was by one of the smaller commercial planes. The fog was so thick it seemed you could cut it with a knife and there was only one other passenger and myself.

I happened to sit a couple of seats behind the pilot compartment and they happened to leave the door open so we (the other passenger and I) had no trouble in getting a first-hand view of the pilot and co-pilot. After we got above the fog it was beautiful– the sun was shining, and the fog bank below looked like a large billowing quilt. However, as we approached San Jose where we were to make an intermediate stop, all you could see were a few mountain peaks here and there.

I tried not to look worried but I noticed the other passenger didn't look too happy either. It was about this time that the pilot turned the controls over to the co-pilot, took out a huge map, laid it over his knees and, after looking at two or three mountain peaks, proceeded to draw several straight lines on the map with his pencil.

I couldn't help but remember the joke about the pilot who came on over the intercom system and announced to his passengers that he had two reports to make, one bad and one good. The bad one being that they were lost and the good one being that, in spite of the fact that they were lost, they were making good time.

In a few minutes the pilot took the controls back from the co-pilot and dropped the plane down through the fog and there was the San Jose runway dead ahead.

I never cease to marvel at how they do this. But, next time I wish they would shut the door. To an ordinary farmer it appears they are guessing at it when they hold a map on their knees.

Enough for now . . . .

BOB WOOD

PG&E plans undergrounding 94% of all installations

Electric distribution systems will be installed underground in nearly 94 per cent of all residential subdivisions in Pacific Gas and Electric Company's service area this year.

This active interest in undergrounding started several years ago when the difference between the cost of overhead electric lines and underground installations to subdividers was lowered considerably.

Through intensive effort, PG&E reduced this cost differential from nearly $600 a lot in 1960 to about $110 in 1968.

The California Public Utilities Commission recently adopted an order covering underground distribution systems in new residential subdivisions. Under this order subdividers throughout the state are responsible only for all necessary trenching and backfilling and conduits where required. The order closely parallels a proposal for such installations which PG&E submitted in December, 1966.

It is estimated the average cost of undergrounding to the developer will therefore be reduced to less than $50 a lot.

The PUC also has instituted an investigation into underground extensions to serve new commercial and industrial developments and individual customers. Hearings on this subject will be scheduled later.

In the PG&E service area undergrounding will be provided for 95 per cent of all shopping centers, 52 per cent of the commercial subdivisions and 47 per cent of the industrial subdivisions to be developed in 1969.

Mathletics event at Hartnell

The second annual Mathletics competition will be held February 28 at Hartnell College.

The competition is for mathematics students grades 7-12 throughout the county. On the high school level, questions will be taken from the College Entrance Board Examinations with emphasis on reasoning-type questions.

Del Monte announces earnings

Third Quarter earnings of 20 cents per share on net income of $355,064 were announced today by Del Monte Properties Company.

Nine months earnings for the Monterey Peninsula based company were 55 cents per share compared with 56 cents per share before a capital gain of 22 cents per share last year.

Income from the company's Sand Division continues as the largest source of its earnings.

Concurrently, a dividend of $0.28125 per share on 216,000 shares of preferred stock was declared payable January 1, 1970 to shareholders of record December 15, 1969, by the board of directors.

With the publication of the dividend and qurterly earnings came the announcement that the company had concluded a long term ground lease with Royal Inns of America for a 200 room hotel which will be built on company property in Monterey.

Highway resurfacing promised

The riding surfaces of 93.5 miles on three routes in Santa Barbara, San Luis Obispo, and Monterey counties will be improved next spring by projects approved today by the California Highway Commission.

The work will consist of applying a one-inch asphaltic concrete blanket on top of the existing pavement ot provide a smoother surface and reduce maintenance costs.

The Monterey County project is on Route 1 between Lucia and Handley Road, about a mile south of Monterey.

Asphaltic concrete blankets are applied to roads that require something more than general maintenance but which are not scheduled for reconstruction in the near future.

The Commission allocated $647,300 for the work as part of a statewide program involving 964 miles of highways at a cost of $8,250,000.

Letters To The Editor

Here is a letter received by Web Downer, the out-going president of the Carmel Kiwanis. Downer is having a waste can made that he will deliver personally.

The Pine Cone wishes to thank Harriet Meyer who sent us the letter and to congratulate Webb Downer and the rest of the Kiwanis for promulgating the Carmel Spirit.

City of Carmel, California
Gentlemen:

I am sure you are aware that your city of Carmel has the most beautiful waste cans in all of California, perhaps in all the world!!

To make a long story short, and hopefully not too far-fetched, I have been smitten by their unusual design and creativity and will not be happy until I have one in my home.

Is there any way of purchasing, stealing, renting or otherwise obtaining one of your waste cans, be it old, new, full or empty?

The request is unusual, but I write in all sincerity with hope of making my decorator's dream come true.

I thank you in advance.

Cordially,
Mrs. Sherry Finkbeiner
San Francisco, California

Editor, Carmel Pine Cone:

So many people have asked us what proceedure to follow in case they should hit an animal on the highway or any road for that matter, thus we have prepared the following information which should be helpful.

If you should be unfortunate enough to hit an animal on the highway the following should be helpful information.

1. STOP — and go back. If it is a small animal and can be moved off the highway, do so very carefully, perferably with a blanket while wearing a pair of heavy gloves. (a blanket covering the animals head will give it a sense of security and protect you from a possible bite.)

Then have someone else go to call the SPCA — 373-2631 — for help, while you stay with the animal, unless

2. If it is a large animal such as a deer, cow, horse, etc. which cannot be moved — put flares out on the highway in both directions of the highway for at least 250 yards (a car traveling at 60 miles an hour requires 300 yards to come to a stop) cover the animal with a blanket if possible and be sure there are flares well placed nearby to prevent on coming cars from hitting the animal again.

Again have someone else call while you stay with the animal, if possible, this time call both the SPCA — 373-2631 — and the Highway Patrol, dial Operator and ask for Zenith 12000, be sure to give the exact location of the animal.

Equipment so necessary to carry in car at all times:

1. A blanket
2. Pair of heavy gloves
3. Flares
4. A firm board 2 ft. wide and ft. long to slide an injured animal onto to move it.
5. A good flashlight.

All the above equipment with the exception of the board and gloves are also necessary equipment in case of an accident involving people — thus every vehicle on the highways should be so equipped.

Dangerous materials banned

Pesticides, explosives and many other dangerous articles may not be carried in the passenger or driver's compartment of farm labor vehicles after Nov. 24.

On that date, new amendments to the California Administrative Code's regulations on farm labor vehicles recently adopted by the California Highway Patrol became effective.

Previously, the only hazardous materials prohibited in farm labor vehicles were flammable liquids. The amedned regulations prohibit transportation of any hazardous materials classifed or defined by the Hazardous Materials Regulations of the U' S. Department of Transportation. This list includes pesticides, herbicides, explosives, etc., as well as flammable liquids.

The new regulations also prohibit farm labor vehicles from operating in combination with any other vehicle except a two-wheeled trailer carrying farm labor equipment.

Other changes in the regulations are as follows: Seats must be securely fastened to the floor. The minimum height of seat backrests has been lowered from 36 inches to 32 inches above the floor. Chains, cables or bars used in farm labor trucks and truck-buses in lieu of doors must not be less than 46 inches nor more than 52 inches from the floor of the vehicle.

The requirement for reserve air pressure for vacuum or air brakes on vehicles first registered after Jan. 1, 1967, has been lowered from 80 to 70 percent, to conform with U.S. Department of Transportation requirements.

The California Administrative Code requires farmers and farm labor contractors to perform systematic inspection and maintenance of all farm labor vehicles subject to their control. The new regulations make explicit the requirement that farmers and contractors also maintain preventative maintenace records which identify the vehicle and show the nature and date of maintenance and repairs.

SOCIAL SECURITY AND YOU

by Raymond MacDonald

Q. I'm only 24 years old and it will be years before I'm old enough to retire. What good is Social Security to me?

A. Social Security is more than retirement insurance. While you work you are earning protection for yourself in the event you become disabled. In addition, if you are married (now or in the future) you are earning benefits for your wife and children if you should die. Social Security is now paying survivors or disability benefits to over 5 million younger people.

Q. I teach school 10 months of each year even though I am now 65 years old. Other teachers tell me I could receive Social Security checks for the months I do not work. Is this true?

A. Yes, if you have worked under Social Security long enough to become insured, you can receive Social Security benefits for any month in which you earn wages of $140 or less, regardless of your total earnings for the year.

Q. I am drawing a Social Security disability benefit. Am I covered under Medicare?

A. No. Covering disabled individuals under Medicare has been proposed and given serious consideration, but so far these individuals are not under Medicare.

(Mail your questions to Social Security , c/o the Carmel Pine Cone, Carmel or phone Social Security office 373-3351)

A CHALLENGE BY THE MASTER – Ted Yudacufski, chess expert and instructor of Carmel's Middle School afternoon chess program, challenges his 23 students to pit their skill against him in a simultaneous exhibition. Yudacufski was victorious in all 23 games, but Craig Johnson, an eighth grader, held out the longest. The exhibition match was played after 10 chess lessons.

CHECKMATE – As David Donohue looks on with resignation instructor Ted Yudacufski delivers the final blow.

OPENING GAMBIT – Ted Yudacufski makes an opening move against Mark Holloway. Other chess players from left are Bruce Walsh, Bruce Brown, John Hughes and James Long. Although Yudacufski was victorious in all his games, several of the children showed remarkable skill against him. One of his most noteworthy challengers was Carolo Anders who placed third in the tournament. She had never played chess previous to her lessons with Yudacufski.

CONCENTRATION – Bill Neuman, left, records his latest move as Tom Snyder contemplates a course of action. The 23 opponents of Ted Yudacufski had plenty of time to plan ahead, but none were able to defeat the master who outmaneuvered every one of his challengers. Yudacufski's chief reason for exposing the children to tournament play was to use the problem solving techniques of selecting solutions and recording games to develop math skills. At a math conference at Asilomar on Dec. 5, Mrs. Willie Belle Mason, math department chairman, will describe the use of chess as a challenge to the creative child.

Middle School chess champs

by Joanne Louise Nix

Checkmate in six moves! A sorry situation for any chess player, but even more so if the victor is an 11-year-old.

Recently I played a game of chess with Carmel Middle School student, Roy Cornwell and blundered into a sudden death situation due to gross underestimation of the opponent.

Roy Cornwell is one of the Students of Ted Yudacufski, a director of the U.S. Chess Federation of California and owner-director of the Casa Alvarado Chess Club in Monterey.

Two groups of 20 students meet each Monday and Thursday after school to master the fine points of chess strategy. The classes receive instruction from Yudacufski and then practice what they have learned with tournament chess sets donated by David Hughes.

The Middle School chess program is the brain child of Mrs. Willeie Belle Mason, math department chairman, who feels that chess is an ideal way to teach math concepts and spur logical thinking processes.

The children have learned their lessons well. This spring they will enter tournaments with Carmel, Martin Luther King and Walter Colton High Schools. Ted Yudacufski explained that high school tournaments are held each year free of charge. This year he plans to enter sixth grade children.

The Carmel Pine Cone congratulates the students of Middle School on their fine accomplishments after only 10 sessions of instruction. We feel, however, that adults are entitled to the same advantages our children receive. We therefore petition Ted Yudacufski to hold chess workshops in Carmel for adults so that we will be able to give the youth of our town a run for their money. We also urge Charles Dawson, principal of adult education at Carmel High School to allow the use of Carmel High School for evening chess classes. Only then can we face our children across the chessboard unintimidated.

Ted Yudacufski we need you!

Reviews for Young Readers

By Allene Fremier

The House on Fairmount, by William Mayne has a number of good things going for it. The illustrations are perky, showing each child who is part of the story as a distinct individual.

Another thing about this book is it makes me think of my childhood, when we would make a mystery out of an ordinary occurrance.

In this story, Rose Baker and Kenneth Arlenski had counted the houses on Fairmount Avenue and found that there were only ninety-nine this side of the State Highway. That meant that the whole avenue had only 1999, instead of 2,000 houses. This starts children wondering why, and they begin an investigation.

One child is Phyllis Anamaker, who keeps her lips folded in o stop them from cracking. Then there is Kathy Clare, who is pretty, but she just uses her face "as something to wrinkle up and turn inside out to frighten babies with."

Then there are the two tiny little Detty girls, Harriet and Isobel, ho are both going to marry Ted House, if their mother will let them. The story is not a thrill-packed adventure, but it is charming and the mystery of what they find is not exactly solved.

Danger In A Smiling Mask, by Anne Emery is sort of a mystery and sort of a romance. It is set in San Francisco.

Robin Odell's sister Marni, a new bride, begs Robin to come and spend the summer with them. Marni lives with her in-laws and some strange things are taking place. The story moves along quickly and contains enough suspense, drama and sight-seeing to interest most young girls.

We have two new books for young people in the field of art. The Psychology of Children's Art, by Rhoda Kellogg with Scott O'Dell will be in the reference section of the Children's room, but may be checked out with special permission. Rhoda Kellogg has spent the last 20 years collecting, analyzing and interpreting paintings and drawings made by children from the United States and 30 other countries. She has been a nursery-school educator and is now the director of the Phoebe A. Hearst Preschool Learning Center and of the Golden Gate Kindergarten Association in San Francisco.

Working with her on this book is Scott O'Dell, winner of the 1961 John Newberry Medal for his Island of the Blue Dolphins. Together they have produced a beautiful and interesting book.

The other art book is Marc Chagall, by Ernest Raboff.

It is one of a new series of books entitled Art for Children which presents the work of some artists of the twentieth century. The book is imaginatively presented, with some facts about the artist's life, quotes from him, and about fifteen full-color reproductions of his work, as well as many smaller drawings and designs.

Artists invited to join Carmel Art Association

The Board of Directors of the Carmel Art Association invites all artists in the fields of painting, sculpture or gravure, who have resided within a 35 mile radius of the Monterey Peninsula for a period of six months, to apply now for active membership.

The Board of Directors will act as the jury. Applicants are asked to submit six works, half of which may be drawings. These works should be delivered on Monday, December 8 before 5 p.m. and picked up on Tuesday by 5 p.m.

Applications and full particulars may be obtained at the gallery office on Dolores Street before December 8 and all applicants will be immediately notified by mail of the jury's decision.

Folk dance class

A free class in folk dancing will be offered under the auspices of the Monterey Peninsula Free University Wednesdays, 7:30 to 11:30 p.m. in Room T-2 at Monterey Peninsula College, it was announced today.

First meeting will be December 3. At this and subsequent meetings, time will be devoted to dances for beginners. More advanced material in line and circle dances from Bulgaria, Yugoslavia and Israel will be approached as the class progresses.

Anyone is welcome to attend at any time, according to Denis Murphy, leader, who emphasizes that "partners aren't required. There are no partners in these types of dances."

Murphy may be reached for further information at 372-0417.

Present day methods for growing asparagus are very similar to those developed about 200 B.C.

Taeuber scores triumph in Symphony concert at Sunset

By Rachel Morton

Conducting an arduous, but splendidly contrasted program, without a score, Haymo Taeuber led the Monterey County Symphony Orchestra masterfully, in a concert at Sunset Auditorium Tuesday evening, November 18.

Music depicting the surging sea, the terrific storm and the restless spirit of "The Flying Dutchman" was heard in the Overture of the opera by that name by Richard Wagner, which opened the program. If the woodwinds seemed insecure in Senta's aria section, the heavy brass section soon washed away any weakness. The Overture is a turbulent one and taxing for even a professional orchestra.

The Adagio for Strings by Samuel Barber was a splendid contrast to Wagner. Slow and very moving, the fich sonorities of the strings were welded and melted together in exquisite harmonies. Especially fine was the cello section in the long and lovely melody. There was cohesion and beautiful tonal quality in all the string sections which made for a very fine performance.

In The Firebird Suite by Stravinsky the eerie environment was early set in the music of the introduction. The quivering flutes, the tremulous violins, the plucked celli, the shriekingwoodwinds, – all gave the effect of a huge aviary in a zoo. The demonic dances of the Firebird and King Kastchei employed all sections of the augmented orchestra to full capacity in skill and ingenuity. The rhythm was frenzied and furious, while the blazing impact of the full orchestra came crashing down in a swirling finish. Stately and slow came the Round Dance of the princesses as they emerged in a shimmering procession, the while the harp intoned and dismally. The lovely Lullaby was the most ingratiating music of the entire suite while the Finale was a great clanging of the giant bells of Kiev in Russia. The audience was greatly stirred by the performance.

After intermission the hauntingly beautiful music of Brahms' Fourth Symphony in E Minor lingered long in my memory. The music of such a giant as Brahms cannot possibly be wholly assimilated by a mere human being. His genius is so great as to be overwhelming. And yet it is so full of warmth and glow that one's heart is reached.

The undulating First Movement presented the motif in many varied tonal hues, which steadily built to a grandiose climax. Insistent and measured was the Andante. A French horn solo was beautifully played against plucked strings. The Allegro spun and whirled, declaiming the noble theme in interesting changes of key and mood. Opening with a brass choir, in incisive, crisp rhythm the Finale was passionate and breathtaking. A notable flute solo was heard and praise, too, is due the gifted concert master.

The audience not only applauded the magnificent performance, it rose to its feet in loud acclaim for our highly talented conductor, Haymo Taeuber.

Hostess...

and "now" hints suggested by the Bayer Company for the celebration of Thanksgiving:

—Make a ceremony with the children of breaking the turkey wishbone.

—Pack small wicker baskets from the five and ten cent store with goodies for guests to take home: cookies, nuts, a bunch of grapes, some turkey slices and dressing wrapped in foil.

—Make a centerpiece by filling a wooden bowl with bittersweet and arrange a variety of nuts in it. Or hollow out a pumpkin, set a jar filled with water inside and fill with chrysanthemums.

—Keep a bottle of aspirin handy. Aspirin will help relieve the headaches that often come from preparing dinner ofr a big crowd on one of the biggest holidays of the year.

—And for something a little different, menu-wise, try these suggestions: For openers, serve Oyster stew in mugs in the living room before dinner.

—Chop a quarter of a cup of pecans and press them into the pie crust before you add the pumpkin pie filling for baking.

—Combine hot mashed yellow turnips with hot mashed potatoes for a delicious surprise.

—Make turkey-shaped cookies for the children to munch on.

And, finally, plan dinner for a time that won't interfere with the men watching the football game.

Tax rebate

Member George R. Reilly announced today that the State Board of Equalization is refunding $415,641 saved in its administrative cost of the 1% cities' and counties' sales and use tax.

Carmel's rebate was $263.38. The total ranged from $67,895 for the city of Los Angeles to 54 cents for Hidden Hills, also in that county.

The $415,641 was included in regular November payments to 400 cities and 58 counties.

"Despite soaring costs, more programs and more accounts, the Board has 19 fewer employees now than it had in 1967," Reilly said.

Cooper blames parents for suicides

In a talk given to the Carmel Parent Nursery School Monday night, Dr. John Cooper, Carmel psychologist, said that parents who refuse to accept at least partial blame for suicides of their children are "cop-outs".

"I have found," Cooper said, "that any person who commits suicide has been set up for it at a very early age. I have never seen a suicide who had not, at a very early age, received the message that he was not really wanted."

He added that the parents are not always aware that they are giving this message to the child, "But a child picks things up and then gives them his own interpretation."

He accused parents of "copping-out all over the place" because they are not concerned enough to carefully examine their child's needs at a particular moment and figure out exactly what is right or wrong for the situation.

Instead, he said, they shove the problem in the background and ignore it. Cooper said that many of the so-called "drug generation" are playing a game called "Kick Me" because as very young children they received mostly all negative attention from heir parents.

"Kick Me" he explained, is a transactional analysis game in which the person whishes to be punished and continually manipulates situations so that he will be criticized or punished.

He said that is the only time a child receives attention is when he is bad, he will continue he pattern. Sometimes, he said, the young person will collect enough "kicks" to justify a suicide.

Cooper discussed with the young mothers family problems such as communication breakdown between parents and children which are usually caused by parents who adopt consciously or unconsciously, their own parents methods of child-rearing whether or not they apply to the particular child at a particular moment.

"I had one mother come to me" Cooper said, "who said 'I can't understand why Johnny does this. I tell him over and over and still he keeps doing it.' Instead of focusing on Johnny, I ask the mother, 'What was your mother like?' She usually says, 'My mother was very strict. She told me over and over . . .'

"So what we learn from our parents is not always applicable in the case of our own children," Cooper concluded.

Cooper, who studied with Bruno Bettelheim at Children's Hospital in Chicago, said he studied the specialized field of child psychology after having obtained his PH.D. in general psychology, because in dealing with adults he frequently wondered "what it must have been like when they were children."

"I eventually decided to use an amalgamation of transactional analysis and the Geshtalt theories in my treatment because "TA" gives the intellectual approach and Geshtalt uses experience analysis.

Shy--or Double Shy?

We've had people come to us and almost apologetically ask, "Do you have to have lots of money to invest in real estate?" I guess they were double-SHY – SHY on investment capital, or so they thought, and SHY on real estate investment knowledge.

No need to be SHY about wanting to learn the "how's" and "why's" of real estate investment. Confusing ideas that may be bothering you can now be cleared up quickly in our informal and informative one-evening investment seminars. Your GOAL should be, "I want to make money." We can give you the facts and lead the way. Everyone likes big investors, but we feel it is just as important to give service to the small investor, too. (Soon he's a big investor.)

Present equities in real estate, antiques, paintings, stamp and coin collections, or many other valuable items can be the beginning of a valuable extended investment program.

Last year, the best real estate "exchange" in California started with a stamp collection.

Taxes in 1970: If all of us don't get "clobbered" too hard by the new tax program, we should be able to continue providing some quality properties bringing around a 10% cash yield. Call to learn of those available now.

If you want to find out more about taxes and investments, and want to attend our last Investment Seminar Class for 1969, better call and reserve your invitations. We like to keep the class down to a friendly size – so no one will be SHY about asking questions that will solve his investment problems.

This week the Pine Cone salutes the Fine Arts and Crafts Festival of Monterey County, sponsors of 39 Craftsmen Bring Christmas.

The thousands of Monterey County residents and visitors who had the good fortune to attend last year's 39 Craftsmen Bring Christmas are familiar with this exciting presentation of the Fine Arts and Crafts Festival. But we suspect that few people connect this event with the many other outstanding contributions this innovative non-profit organization has made to the cultural life of the county.

FA&CF was organized in 1966 with the purpose of brining stimulating and unusual artistic and cultural events to the county. Any funds raised through these programs are used to support already existing artistic activities in the county, such as the Monterey County Symphony.

In its first year, FA&CF presented the largest juried art show and convocation of artists-in-action ever held in the county. In subsequent years the organization has sponsored appearanced by the San Diego Ballet, the touring of Keio Mandolin Orchiestra from Japan, and a special children's theatre production of "Winnie the Pooh."

39 Craftsmen Bring Christmas serves both goals of FA&CF: It brings to the public a uniquely exciting exhibition of eminent artists and craftsmen; and the participating artists, by contributing a portion of their sales to the organization, help support the other activities of FA&CF.

We commend the Fine Arts and Crafts Festival of Monterey County for its many contributions toward the enrichment of our lives. And we urge the public to lend its support ot this worthwhile organization by attending 39 Craftsmen Bring Christmas at the La Playa Hotel in Carmel, Friday, Saturday and Sunday, December 5, 6, and 7.

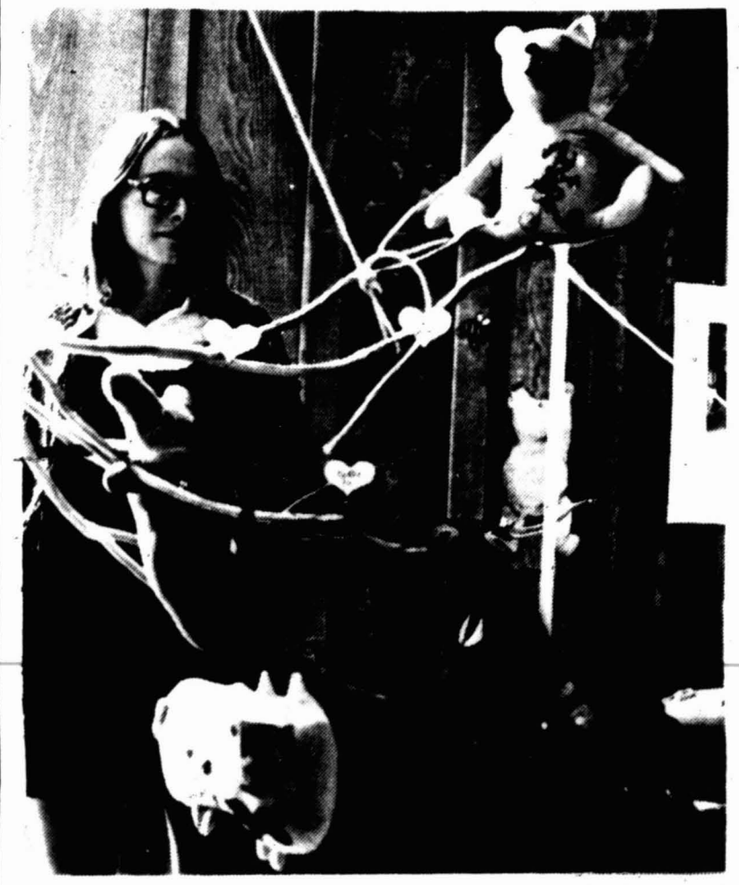
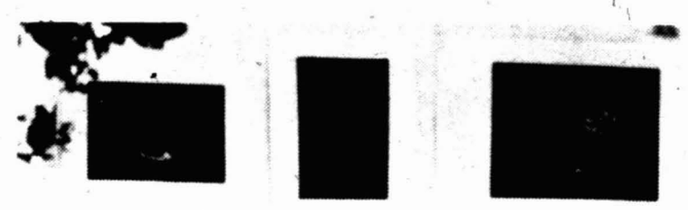
BOBBIE SPIEGL'S welded metal sculpture recalls nature's forms — a bird in flight, the leaning cypress tree, a pelican's dive. Her recent work combines a welded approach with the painter's dimension. See her pleasing innovations at 39 Craftsmen Bring Christmas.



LOIS WATSON, is an imaginative young designer who directs her talents towards creations for children. Her hand-embroidered clothes and stuffed toys reflect a fresh outlook and skillful hand.

PENINSULA POTTERS, a group of ceramicists of individual talents have pooled their skills to form a potter's cooperative of unusual quality. Borrowing from their display room and studio near Cannery Row they'll join 39 Craftsmen to show their work.

MALOA, now in association with Lilli of Carmel, will display her hand-sewn fashions of classic form and simplicity. This statuesque, elegant clothing designer maintains the quality control and flair which have become her trademark throughout the length and breadth of the state.



JOHN AND MARY ELBER demonstrate their unusual artistic sense in the many reasonably priced batiks.

JENNIFER LOVEJOY's mobiles delicately twist and turn in even the lightest breeze. She combines wire, tissue paper, and feathers into inventive shapes which she then suspends from rods that seem to float free in space.

STEVE BROWN, Pacific Grove metalsmith, will display his hand-forged copper oil lamps — an age old method of lighting currently undergoing a revival. The lamps burn cooking oil and may be scented with exotic oils to fill your home with irresistable scents and flickering light.

LOCAL CARTOONISTS FRANK O'NEAL, GUS ARRIOLA AND ELDON DEDINI discuss the 39 Craftsmen during a lunch with The Fine Arts and Crafts president Bob Grabowski. Each cartoonist participated last year and will again. Frank O'Neal will make many of his cartoon Characters available for purchase — The Executioner, The Bruk Bros., Spacemen, The Sheriff, etc. Gus Arriola will also show his cartoon strip GORDO and BUG ROGERS. Eldon Dedini will have available some of his finished sketches.

THE EIKON GALLERY made its debut with the opening of the Pacific Grove Art Center. The gallery's format includes work of local photographers as well as one man exhibits. Throughout December the photographs by Ansel Adams will be featured.

39 CRAFTSMEN BRING CHRISTMAS

MIKE DUNHAM's talent as a leather craftsman make his handsome handbags, belts, and clothes gifts that will be appreciated by those with an eye for imaginative leather work. Close examination of his booth will reveal the devotion with which he approaches his craft.

DUANE MATTERSON — Out of their smoky, flame-belching kiln the Matterson Family Potters pull unique pottery surprises. Residents of Monterey since 1948 they were originally the Huckleberry Hill Potters. Under Duane's leadership the whole family participates in both community activities and the production of mugs, plates, candle palques, toothbrush holders and the ever popular whimsy boxes.

STUDIO WEAVERS — Russ Brown, Lynn Fox, Nina McGiveran, and Les Rhinehart, form the Studio Weavers. From their shop on Cannery Row come the prize-winning designs that have been featured in national magazines and competitive craft shows. Drawing on their diverse training in fields from business to music, this talented foursome brings to their work both the highly inventive style of the musician and the practicality of the analytical mind so essential to quality weaving.

DECEMBER 5, 6, 7

La Playa Hotel

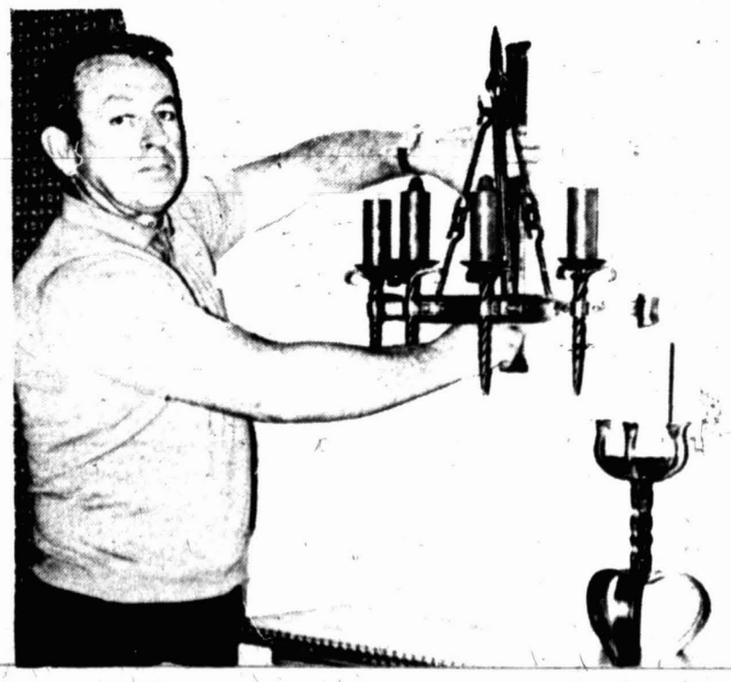
JAMES O'HARE, a metal-worker from Salinas, will exhibit his candle sconces, turn-around doorbells and other original metal sculptures for your home at the 39 Craftsmen Bring Christmas.



BILL STONE, Carmel High art teacher, turned to making his own ties due to the frustrations of finding "the same old thing" in his clothes shopping. The inevitable "Could you make one for me?" led to his 1968 partnetship with Glen Meyers of the Navy Postgraduate School. Together they do bold, unique patterns and colors of ties and apache scarves which provide the recognition badge for an ever growing fraternity of "happy tie" wearers.
